In 2023, World Vision Albania was joined again by many partners in its mission to transform lives of 34,455 children and young people. Our partners were citizens who donate, children, families, institutions, faith based and civil society organizations, agencies, businesses, media, experts, networks and more. I want to take the opportunity to say thank you for your partnership.

As we lived through a year of continuing or emerging conflicts, the climate crisis, the rising inequalities, social injustices all over the world, we have felt more strongly than ever the responsibility to care for the others and for the planet. There is no country far from home. There is no house far from home.

At World Vision we have the privilege of serving the most vulnerable and spreading hope, joy and justice.

Behind the work of this year and every year are the hearts, heads and hands of the team here in Albania, with the support of our advisory board and World Vision team in Middle East and Easter Europe region, support offices and global centre. Thank you for your service.

This report is the story of a year, told in 20 pages. I invite you to read through the pages and be inspired by examples of hope, joy and justice.

Overview of priority sectors

At World Vision Albania, our technical approaches, contributing to Education and Life Skills of children and youth, Social Protection and Inclusion, and Livelihoods, are at the core of our mission.

These approaches are part of a holistic and integrated strategy that emphasizes empowerment, community engagement, and sustainable development. At the heart of our mission is empowering children, adolescents, and communities to become agents of transformation.

Through models like IMPACT+ for young people development, Child Protection & Advocacy (CP&A) for child wellbeing, and Citizen Voice and Action (CVA) for community engagement, Gender Equality and Social Inclusion, Disaster Risk Reduction, Faith and Development, Advocacy, and Environmental Stewardship & Climate Action, we address the multifaceted challenges faced by communities.

Education and Life Skills

Contribution to:

Cross cutting / Enabling:

World Vision Albania empowers children and adolescents to thrive, preparing them for life's challenges and nurturing their potential as agents of transformation in their communities. IMPACT+ is World Vision Albania's transformative adolescents' program that empowers adolescents as they transition into adulthood. It aims to enable children to emerge as leaders driving positive change within their communities. The program consists of two interconnected interventions: weekly club meetings and Community Service-Learning Projects (CSLP) that serve as practical learning experiences while bringing about positive social change in their communities. IMPACT+ fosters the three Cs: Competency, equipping youth, especially the most vulnerable, with vital resilience, life skills, knowledge, and attitudes; Character, promoting positive identity, empowerment, and foundational values; and Contribution, encouraging active citizenship and driving sustainable community development. Supporting and collaborating with schools, municipalities, and the community is at the core of community development, ensuring that the capacities of key actors like teachers and municipality representatives are raised, ensuring the most vulnerable children reach their potential.

WVA hosted Youth Festival 2023 for the seventh year. Over 100 young people were part of the event, where they raised the issue of youth employability and accessing the labour market. They also proposed clear solutions to the issue focused on:

- There is a need to invest in career orientation and paid internships.
- There is a need to expand mobile employability services to reach vulnerable groups.
- Strategy and tangible actions to build digital & green economy skills among young people.
- Comprehensive technical and financial packages for youth employment.
- Online certified training and courses for young people.

Kamila, the champion of children's and youth rights

Kamila, from Korça, Albania, is an inspiring example of youth leadership championed by World Vision Albania (WVA). Her journey with WVA's IMPACT clubs started in the sixth grade and has been transformative, driving her to engage in community improvement, advocate for children's rights, and champion gender equality.

Kamila's approach to life is marked by purpose, balance, and a commitment to making meaningful changes. Her earliest success with the IMPACT group, improving her school's equipment through fundraising, set the stage for numerous initiatives to support social groups, enhance school facilities, and invest in sports infrastructure.

Her role extends beyond local efforts; Kamila has significantly contributed to national discussions on youth and children's issues, mainly through her participation in developing the National Youth Strategy 2022-2029. Recognized as a “champion of child rights,” her advocacy also focuses on breaking down gender barriers in sports and society, emphasizing inclusivity and equality.

Kamila's story reflects WVA's impact in empowering young voices. Her call to her peers to engage, innovate, and support each other highlights the essence of youth-driven change.

Through WVA's support, Kamila is an example how young individuals can influence local communities and national policies, underscoring the vital role of youth in shaping a more equitable and responsive society.

Social Protection and Inclusion

Contribution to:

Cross cutting / Enabling:

The Child Protection & Advocacy Project Model (CP&A) implemented by World Vision Albania focuses on mobilising collective action among formal and informal child protection actors within the community to create a more robust protective environment for children. This approach empowers local communities to analyse risks and threats to children's safety and collaboratively implement evidence-based solutions that address the root causes of violence against children. It encompasses laws and policies, services for child protection, coordination and collaboration among stakeholders, accountability mechanisms, a supportive circle of care that encompasses protective attitudes, social norms, and behaviours, and the resilience and capacity of children to protect themselves and others. At the family level, the program strengthens families through the Celebrating Families model. This faith-based core project model aims for children to have positive and caring relationships with families, allowing them to thrive spiritually, socio-emotionally and physically. Integrated services for the most vulnerable children who experience a lack of services and any form of violence and families in remote communities have been integrated into the services provided by WVA over the years.

In 2023, World Vision Albania joined the European Association of Service Providers for Persons with Disabilities (EASPD). The aim of this membership was to share experiences and exchange best practices with European partner organizations to promote equal opportunities for children and youth with disabilities.

2,458 families received support through food packages, clothing, and e-vouchers. 47 families were supported with household equipment as per their needs.

97 youth (46 girls and 51 boys) from Tirana and Shkodra were trained in recidivism prevention, data protection, human trafficking prevention in the digital area, soft skills of the XXIst century, knowing their rights and responsibilities, and combining theory with practice in partnership with the European Centre.

The WVA team, in collaboration with Child Protection Workers (CPWs), assisted in 69 case management processes, including drafting Individual Protection Plans (IPPs).

16 frontline workers and NARU professionals attended a capacity-building event on integrated case management, standards and procedures in Kurbin.

10 psychosocial professionals received orientation on the importance of assessment in psychosocial and health aspects, aiming to ensure that children feel protected and secure in Durres.

3 centres successfully provided services for children, parents, and the community in three municipalities: the Resilience Centre in Kurbin, the Community Centre to Disability Services in Prrenjas, and the Emergency Centre in Durrës.

158 children with disabilities received mobile services in their homes and centre premises in Prrenjas, Librazhd, Kurbin, Durrës and Tiranë. 4,368 hours of therapy (speech therapy, physiotherapy, development therapy) have been provided to children.

120 parents have been actively engaged with orientations and psychosocial counselling on better supporting their children.

10 children with disabilities have been provided dental care in collaboration with local marketing partners.

22 adolescents with disability in Tiranë were supported with basic skills, home skills, independence skills, and professional skills.

Their parents were supported with coaching.

91 children and 121 women victims of domestic and gender-based violence have been supported in emergency centres with safe accommodation, transportation, food, clothing, hygienic-sanitary support, medical care, legal aid and psychological counselling.

70 children from the most vulnerable families with health issues were supported with case management, specialized medical visits, and optical skeleton and lens.

Brunilda, the journey to independence

At just 13, Brunilda from Prrenjas, Albania, represents resilience and the profound impact of compassionate support for children with autism spectrum disorder. Her story starts with her enrolment in World Vision Albania's "Tungjatjeta Jetë" project. It illustrates the transformative effect of specialized therapy and care on her, and her family's lives.

Despite her communication challenges, Brunilda's progress in therapy has significantly enhanced her focus, social skills, and ability to connect with others, thanks to the dedicated services at the Community Centre for Disability Services and the specialized home visits provided now by the EU-funded project.

Brunilda's journey is marked by her mother Mimoza's shift from despair to hope, driven by the tangible improvements in Brunilda's abilities and the reduction of social prejudice.

The project has been a lifeline, ensuring that children with disabilities in rural areas have access to essential support. Mimoza's wish for Brunilda's independence and continued access to necessary services highlights the importance of sustained support and the significant role of World Vision Albania in empowering children with disabilities and their families.

Brunilda's story is not just about overcoming challenges; it reflects the collective effort and dedication to ensuring every child has the opportunity to thrive.

Livelihoods & Environmental Stewardship

Contribution to:

Through strategies such as enhancing agricultural production and promoting financial literacy, the World Vision Albania Livelihood approach seeks to foster self-efficacy and partnerships for market access; we empower families to increase their income and resilience, moving them from surviving to thriving with a dedicated focus on gender equality, social inclusion, and financial literacy. By equipping families with the necessary tools and knowledge, we strive to uplift communities.

Evidence - Learning to See the Climate Crisis

In response to the urgent global concern of climate change, which is particularly impacting the Mediterranean region and Albania through rising temperatures, extreme weather events, and their cascading effects on biodiversity, agriculture, and human health, a study was conducted to understand the perceptions and preparedness of children and young people in Albania regarding climate change. This study, rooted in the critical need to address climate-related dangers and enhance societal interventions, aimed to explore the environmental knowledge, concerns, understanding of impacts, and preparedness levels for climate change disasters among the younger population. The research utilized qualitative and quantitative methods, gathering quantitative insights from 315 children, adolescents, and young adults and employing 17 in-depth key informant interviews. The main finding of the study includes the following:

Cross cutting / Enabling:

- 46% of children, 41% of adolescents, and 42% of young people have limited, moderate, and extensive knowledge of climate change.
- 52% of young people are alarmed about climate change, with predominant concerns: biodiversity loss, health threats, and broad climatic changes.
- Children perceive the immediate impacts of climate change on illness (55.7%), land deterioration (41%), and malnutrition (40.6%).
- Adolescents see climate change as having an immediate impact on illness (53.6%), malnutrition (47.4%), and mental health, with anxiety (61.5%) and sleep problems (40.6%) being significant concerns.
- Young people see a lifelong impact of climate change on malnutrition (41.4%), illness (50%), and limited health service capacity (53.6%). Mental health concerns are articulated by young people, including depression (40.3%), anxiety (47.6%), and sleep problems (50.8%). Read More

LIFE STORY

Improving livelihoods through biodiversity conservation in the Korab-Koritnik Nature Park

In Eastern Albania's Korab-Koritnik Nature Park, an initiative implemented by World Vision Albania, Agritra Vision, and PONT in Albania, has promoted biodiversity conservation while enhancing the livelihoods of local communities.

By focusing on the sustainable cultivation of medicinal and aromatic plants, the project has provided tangible benefits to the community, especially women farmers in Obok, enhancing plant health and quality. The effort has underscored the region's potential for medicinal plant production to stimulate the local economy while preserving natural biodiversity.

The project has increased environmental awareness among local farmers, encouraging them to adopt sustainable practices in cultivating and gathering medicinal plants without harming the environment. It has also fostered partnerships, particularly with local institutions. Team members from implementing organizations and local institutions have also seen a boost in their capacity to protect further and develop the area.

This initiative has underscored the connection between biodiversity protection, sustainable management, economic growth, and capacity enhancement of local organizations, demonstrating that comprehensive projects can bring about positive and lasting changes to communities and their environments.

Advocacy

Contribution to:

Advocacy lies at the heart of World Vision Albania's strategic priorities, at both national and local levels, aiming to ensure the promote sustained child well-being of children. WVA empowers children and young leaders, nurturing fostering their active participation as advocates for their rights and catalysts for actors of social change.

At the local level, we implement Citizen Voice and Action (CVA) project model, which serves as a powerful tool used to engage stakeholders and enhance increase accountability in service provision. Through the CVA process, we facilitate a local advocacy initiative that educate initiative where school stakeholders learn about their rights and responsibilities. World Vision equips children and community members, then use that knowledge to demand improvements in municipal council budgeting decisions, thereby fostering a more transparent and responsive environment.

Policy improvement

Following an intense consultation process, led by the Ministry of Justice, in December 2022 the Council of Ministers approved the Intersectoral Strategy on Juvenile Justice 2022-2026.

This involvement underscores the organization's commitment to ensuring that children who are either in contact with or in conflict with the law have access to essential services.

Our recommendations have been mainly focused on strengthening three main pillars:

- strengthening measures that focus on prevention and legal education of children and parents,
- creation of restorative communities supporting not only children but also their families, with the aim of prevention, treatment, and rehabilitation,
- strengthening mechanisms and structures for prevention, friendly treatment, and reintegration.

Active participation of children and youth in decision-making

World Vision Albania played an essential role in amplifying the voice of children and youth through significant advocacy actions, contributing to advancing policies and strategies focused on their well-being and development. Adolescents and young people were part of monitoring the National Youth Strategy 2022-2029, a comprehensive framework aimed at strengthening youth voice, innovation, and skills, particularly in technology, and promoting their mental, physical, and social health. This involvement extended to engagement in Local Youth Councils, emphasizing the need for stronger councils and more significant youth investments.

WVA's participation in the National Council on the Rights and Protection of Children meeting highlighted the importance of upholding the National Agenda of Children and ensuring accountability for children's concerns. The organization facilitated adolescents' involvement in discussions with the Commissioner for Children's Rights, where they voiced critical issues such as the need for improved data confidentiality, a better violence referral system, expanded services for children in rural areas, and increased support for children with disabilities. These actions underscore World Vision Albania's commitment to fostering environments where children and youth can actively contribute to dialogues and decisions affecting their lives, ensuring their voices are heard and acted upon at national and local levels.

This year, we've particularly focused on children's participation in our projects and decision-making processes at WVA, leading to the creation of the Youth Advisory Board. With 15 dedicated young members, this board advises the WVA leadership and influences our programming and advocacy efforts for children and youth. Collaborating with these young advisors is fundamental in effectively addressing the needs and concerns of children.

It Takes a World Campaign

In our efforts to foster positive parenting and discipline among parents and caregivers, WVA has launched an online version of the "In the Labyrinth" project over the past year.

Following its effective roll-out in several major municipalities, "In the Labyrinth" can now be accessed online. Its goal is to educate the public about various forms of violence against children and adolescents and their effects, while also interactively promoting awareness of the repercussions of physical and psychological violence on children.

In May 2023, WVA highlighted its commitment to ending violence against children. Igli, a member of WVA's IMPACT youth group, represented the voices of millions at the 76th UN General Assembly in Geneva during the Changemakers Mobilisation Moment, a global initiative that celebrated youth as agents of change. This event, part of the external engagement for ITAW, saw over 50 World Vision International offices, including WVA, mobilizing to advocate for the end of violence against children. WVI's UN Global Capital in Geneva hosted Igli from Albania, alongside Delali from Ghana, as they urged the 76th World Health Assembly to commit to actions on EVAC by sharing the Changemakers Call to Action.

In 2023, the Ministry of Interior and the National Coordinator for Antitrafficking revamped the National Referral Mechanism (NRM) to enhance its efficiency and to ensure the continued application of standards and SOPs for identifying and responding to the needs of victims of trafficking. World Vision Albania, a member since 2012, renewed its commitment with other partners to support trafficking prevention and victim reintegration.

Throughout the year, activities focused on raising awareness about human trafficking laws, various forms of trafficking, and its societal impacts were conducted during events like the antitrafficking month in October, International Day against Child Labor, and Safe Internet Week.
